

CoHousing Group Now Forming in Santa Monica

More than a neighborhood and less than a commune, CoHousing combines the advantages of private residences with the benefits of sustainable living, including shared common facilities and ongoing connections with neighboring families.

These intentional communities, created, owned, and managed by the residents themselves, offer an innovative, sustainable, and practical solution to today's financial, environmental and social challenges.

While most people think CoHousing communities require large tracts in suburban and rural areas, many are being established in residential areas just like Santa Monica.

Today, there are more than 90 CoHousing communities in the U.S. that are currently occupied, and another 100 or more communities under development, building from scratch or retrofitting existing structures, or just forming — including Santa Monica Co-Housing Group — right here in town!
